INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

SEMIOSIS IN COMMUNICATION

Differences and Similarities

Bucharest, 14-16 June, 2018

Conference description

The second edition of the International Conference Semiosis in Communication: Differences and Similarities will be organized by the National University of Political Studies and Public Administration, Romania (NUPSPA), through the Applied Semiotics and Communication Lab (ASCL) – affiliated to the Centre for Research in Communication of the Communication and Public Relations Faculty, NUPSPA – in participation with Southeast European Center for Semiotic Studies (SEECSS) at New Bulgarian University (NBU), Sofia, Bulgaria; Semiotics and Visual Communication Research Lab at Cyprus University of Technology; Romanian Association of Semiotic Studies (AROASS) and under the auspices of the International Association for Semiotic Studies (IASS-AIS). It will be held in Bucharest, Romania, from the 14th to the 16th of June, 2018.

This conference explores the role of semiosis in communication. As such, the conference offers an insight towards the epistemological relations between semiotics and other approaches to communication coming from perspectives such as sociology, philosophy of language and communication theory.

Objects of interdisciplinary knowledge par excellence, semiotics and communication are complementary ways of world mastery, of the big game, just like Solomon Marcus (2011) would say. In a world of global communication, where each one's life depends increasingly on signs, language and communication, understanding how we relate and opening ourselves to otherness, to differences in all their forms and aspects is becoming more and more relevant. From this perspective, an important objective of the International Conference Semiosis in Communication: Differences and Similarities is to emphasize the importance of semiotic queries in the communication sciences.

The conference proceeds in three panels (sessions), each focused on a theme. In addition, Professors Susan Petrilli and Augusto Ponzio will hold a special session as honorary guests. In accordance with the paper proposals, the preliminary list of suggested sessions will be updated.

Professors Susan Petrilli and Augusto Ponzio will also give keynote lectures alongside other keynote speakers.

Difference and Similarity in the I-Other Relation.
Between Two Individualities or Two Singularities?

For Solomon Marcus

In Forms of Meaning: Modelling System Theory and Semiotic Analysis (Mouton de Gruyter 2000), Thomas Sebeok and Marcel Danesi distinguish between two forms of similarity: cohesive form and connective form.

Similarity as cohesive form assigns given individuals to the same class, to the same set. Concepts, types, species, identities are all formed on the basis of similarity as cohesive form. Cohesive form, also called assemblative form, subtends similarity and difference in the I-Other relation. In this case the I-Other relation is determined by the identity of each of its parts, by one's belonging to this or this other assemblage, organization, to this or this other set, to this or this other type or kind. Consequently, in this relation the I and the other depend on signs that distinguish and differentiate them.

But is this really what the I-other relation must be reduced to? We do not believe so. And this is the belief orientating that particular bend in semiotics we have indicated as semioethics.

With reference to the distinction proposed by Sebeok and Danesi, the other type of similarity and difference is that indicated as connective form. Following Charles S. Peirce it can also be denominated as agapastic form. This type of similarity does not concern individuals that must be assigned to this or this other set, assemblage, type, that must be classified in terms of some fixed identity.

Connective form is not related to what presents itself as the same or as different in terms of cohesive form. In the case of connective form, similarity in the I-other relation involves relations among singularities and not among individuals, where singularities are irreducible and cannot be eliminated as occurs, instead, when they are assembled and grouped together in a set of some sort, in a concept.

When a question of connective or agapastic form, difference is given by irreducible alterity, uniqueness, non interchangeability of each one of us with respect to every other. The condition of irreducible alterity, of irreducible singularity is inevitably accompanied by responsibility of each one of us for every other, and is a form of responsibility that cannot be delegated.

2. Semiotics and communication

This panel approaches directly the act or phenomenon of communication in the light of semiotic theory. Its purpose is to develop the premises for a semiotic theory of communication. While communication was explored thoroughly in the light of other disciplines, and, as such, understood within the perspective of sociology, psychology, cognitive sciences, cultural studies or philosophy of language, semiotics accounts for communication as an act of signification. As such, communication is not accounted for as necessarily dependent on categories such as social interaction, cognitive abilities or cultural background, but as purely a phenomenon of signification. This is the most theoretically general and open panel.

Panel head(s): Dumitru Borțun, National University of Political Studies and Public Administration, Romania; Nicolae-Sorin Drăgan, National University of Political Studies and Public Administration, Romania.

3. Why Europe? Narratives and Counter-narratives of European Integration

Special Panel organized by the ECREA Temporary Working Group "Communication and the European Public Sphere"

Pressured by what appears as a never-ending crisis, the European Union has to face multiple internal fractures and external pressures. Populism, nationalism and right-wing extremism are seeing resurgence in a number of states across Europe, with consequences on the decision-making process in the European Union. As it became a very familiar narrative in recent years, this phenomenon creates severe discontinuities from the previous EU communication paradigm. The dangers associated with extremism and populism in the political discourse is that in order to meet the increasingly Eurosceptic public opinion, many political leaders artificially oppose the “national interest” to the EU’s interest. Populist tendencies are worth exploring in the light of EU’s multiple difficulties, the immigrant crisis being only the latest one. This panel welcomes contributions related to the latest communication patterns in the EU, as depicted in the media and in the political discourse. Our aim is to promote a critical, yet constructive, approach on European integration. Contributions may include, but are not restricted to:

- Narratives and counter-narratives of disruption: nationalism, populism and extremism
- The multiple crises of the European Union: fuelling far right movements
- Symbolical representations of intra-EU fractures: East-West/North-South divides and the “Brexit”
- Public opinion in the EU
- Populism, nationalism, and/or extremism across EU member states (the discourse of the political leaders, public opinion, media research, etc.)
- Framing the European Union in turmoil contexts
- Social media and extremism
- EU Communication as a means of resurrecting the “European idea”
- Europeanization models and narratives – recent developments

A broad goal of this edited panel is to explore new theoretical and empirical frameworks that might explain how current communication practices, including media visibility and framing, public discourse, citizens’ perceptions and participation, influence the development of a European arena of communication.

Panel head: Alina Bârgăoanu, National University of Political Studies and Public Administration, Romania.

Honorary Guests:

- Susan Petrilli, Professor of Philosophy and Theory of Languages at the Department of Lettere, LingueArti – Italianistica e Culture Comparate (Letters, Languages, Arts – Italian Studies and Comparative Cultures), University of Bari “Aldo Moro”, Bari, Italy; Visiting Research Fellow at the School of Psychology, the University of Adelaide, South Australia, and Vice President of the International Association for Semiotic Studies (IASS-AIS) and
- Augusto Ponzio, Professor Emeritus of Philosophy and Theory of Languages at University of Bari “Aldo Moro”, Italy;

Keynote Speakers confirmed:

- Augusto Ponzio, Professor Emeritus of Philosophy and Theory of Languages at University of Bari “Aldo Moro”, Italy;
- Paul Cobley, President of IASS-AIS, International Association for Semiotic Studies, Middlesex University, U.K.;
- Göran Sonesson, Professor of Semiotics & Director of Centre for Cognitive Semiotics, Division of Cognitive Semiotics, Centre for Language and Literature, Lund University, Sweden;
- Dario Martinelli, Director of ISI, International Semiotics Institute; Scientific director of IASS-AIS World Congress Kaunas 2017, University of Technology, Lithuania;
- Luis Emilio Bruni, From 2011 to 2017 was president of the Nordic Association for Semiotic Studies (NASS) and currently seats in its Board, as well as in the board of directors of the International Society for Information Studies (ISIS), Aalborg University Copenhagen, Denmark;
- Massimo Leone, IFK Senior Fellow - International Research Centre for Cultural Studies, University of Art and Design Linz, Wien; Professor of Semiotics, Cultural Semiotics, and Visual Semiotics at the Department of Philosophy, University of Turin, Italy and
- Kristian Bankov, Professor of Semiotics at New Bulgarian University and Department Chair of the Southeast European Center for Semiotic Studies; Secretary General of IASS-AIS, International Association for Semiotic Studies.

Important deadlines

Deadline for submission of Abstracts: ~~25th of February 2018~~ - 8th of April 2018 (you will receive an acknowledgment by email)

Notification of Acceptance: ~~11th of March 2018~~ - 15th of April 2018

Deadline for participation fee: ~~15th of April 2018~~ - 6th of May 2018

Conference: 14-16 June, 2018

Paper submission

Applications for presentations consist in only one document:

- Title and abstract (max. 300 words followed by 3-5 keywords) with short and relevant bionote (do not exceed 150 words, please) in MS Word format (.doc, .docx). We highly appreciate short, schematic texts.
- Please use the abstract template available on the conference website at <http://centrucomunicare.ro/semiosis/cfp.html>. You can download the template of abstract directly from the conference website (Abstract_Template.doc)

Co-authored papers are welcome.

Papers are delivered in 30 minutes presentations (20 minutes talk followed by 10 minutes of debate).

Please, submit your proposal to dragan.nicolaesorin@gmail.com or sorin.dragan@comunicare.ro within April 8th, 2018. Only one paper for each participant (as a first author) will be accepted.

The official language of the conference is English.

The authors will receive confirmation via e-mail.

Registration & Conference fee

Delegates should pay the conference fee (100 Euro/participant) after the notification of abstract acceptance. Members of the IASS-AIS benefit of a 50% discount (50 Euro/participant). For delegates only attending the conference (without presenting), the fee is 25 Euro/participant. Students will have free access to all the presentations.

The fee includes conference attendance, lunch, refreshments during coffee breaks, conference bag, publication in conference proceedings and in the Romanian Journal of Communication and Public Relations (selected papers only), refreshments during coffee breaks and lunch.

After the payment delegates are required to send the payment confirmation to: dragan.nicolaesorin@gmail.com in order to register for the conference.

Publication

For conference delegates, we offer more publishing possibilities. In all instances your papers are subject to a double-blind peer review. Each journal has its own peer review process that will be followed. If you have committed your paper for other venues, you may just present your paper at the conference. Please note that only the papers that have been presented at the conference will be published.

Selected papers that will undergo the journal's peer-review process will be published in:

- The Romanian Journal of Communication and Public Relations (<http://www.journalofcommunication.ro/>), an academic journal indexed in the following research data-bases: Scopus, EBSCO, ProQuest, DOAJ, CEEOL, Index Copernicus, Cabell's, and Genamics Journal Seek.
- Journal of Media Research (<http://mrjournal.ro/>). The Journal of Media Research is a scientific research journal focusing on the field of media and communication. It is a peer reviewed academic publication for interdisciplinary quantitative and qualitative research in the social sciences. Carefully read the guidelines for authors. The journal is indexed in the following international databases: EBSCO, ProQuest, and CEEOL.
